

ADVERTISING

Click Now 40% OFF

A+ HOBBY LOBBY

Yes! We have School Supplies!

Mobile | Newsletters | RSS | Subscribe | Subscriber services

Your profile | Commenter Log in | Subscriber Log In | Contact/Help

Monday, August 5, 2013 | TRAFFIC | 85°F

Follow us

The Seattle Times
Winner of Nine Pulitzer Prizes

Travel / Outdoors

Advanced Search | Events & Venues | Obituaries

Home | News | Business & Tech | Sports | Entertainment | Food | Living | Homes | Travel | Opinion

Jobs | Autos | Classifieds | Weekly Ad

IN THE NEWS: Seattle mayor's race | Seafair attendance | PacMed Center | Seattle Opera's 'Ring' | Clint Dempsey

Originally published Monday, August 5, 2013 at 11:49 AM

To see grizzlies in Alaska, follow the salmon

By Anne Z. Cooke and Steve Haggerty
McClatchy-Tribune News Service

TOGIAK, Alaska — Do you want to see grizzly bears in the Alaskan wild? Of course you do. This summer's Alaskan adventure wouldn't be complete without photos to post on Facebook and to send to friends.

But don't count on getting picture-perfect close-ups of Smokey's larger cousins. Of the millions of travelers expected to tour Alaska this year, only a few will be lucky enough to see a grizzly (they call them brown bears here). And if they do, it's likely to be at long range. I know. I've been disappointed more than once.

"See that brown shape moving near the trees," the Denali Park bus driver says, and you look and look, and everyone around you peers and points, and finally you see the bear, a blotchy brown spot that might as well be a cow.

But if you really want to see a grizzly doing its wild thing, you need to know where the bears gather to eat, and go there yourself.

And where do they go, and have gone every summer for the last millennium? To the rivers, brooks and creeks where salmon, their primary food, swim upstream to the pools and eddies where they were hatched and where they will spawn and die.

When Alaskan salmon get the signal to spawn — no one's quite sure how — they return from the ocean in the tens of thousands, gathering near the mouth of familiar rivers. Then they head upstream, swimming so close together that their backs, when you see them from above, resemble gridlocked traffic on a mid-city freeway. The bears, meanwhile, linger along the stream banks, watching and waiting for the feast. When the fish arrive — a moving banquet that lasts for days — the bears hustle into the water, clutching and snatching at every fish that passes by. Busy putting on fat calories, they're generally oblivious to everything else, even nearby people.

Once a bear has a fish in its jaws, it climbs onto the bank or a gravel bar and rips the fish apart, devouring the richest parts and tossing the rest away. These bits of carcass feed the trout, and in turn the birds, small mammals, insects and eventually microorganisms. The rest dissolves in the stream as nutrients, fertilizer for the trees and bushes along the banks. Everything in this riverine landscape depends on the salmon.

That could be you, standing there with your camera, perched close in but out of the way. But remember to take care. Never get between a brown bear and its dinner, or a mother and her cubs, or between two males vying for top-bear fishing rights. That's why the best way to see and photograph bears is to go with a guide, someone who knows the salmon streams, where the bears will be and how to stay safe.

If you do see bears in the wild, treasure the moment. And remember: You're now a witness to the salmon-to-bear food chain and, I hope, an advocate for protecting Alaska's rivers from an-made pollutants dumped into streams — especially from mining. Without salmon, Alaska's brown bears, its

Share:

 Comments (0)

 E-mail article

 Print

◀ PREV 1 of 3 NEXT ▶

A brown bear keeps an eye out for salmon along an Alaskan creek. MCT

If you go

Alaska travel

See these websites for travel (and grizzly) info:

- travelalaska.com
- anchorage.net
- kenaipeninsula.org

MOST POPULAR COMMENTS

HIDE / SHOW COMMENTS

☞ No comments have been posted to this article.

Start the conversation >

ADVERTISING

amazon.com

Olympus SZ-31MR 16MP CMOS ...
$399.99 $269.00

Who's the next Seattle Mayor?
Turn to our interactive voters guide for more information, and you decide!

ADVERTISING

PARTNER VIDEO

Sponsored Listings

#1 Rated Sunless Tanner

No Smell. No Streaks. No Orange! You Tried The Rest!
TanPhysics.com

most magnificent predators, will disappear, along with the rest of the river-dependent creatures, from river otters and wolves to foxes, wolverines, rodents, trout, trees, flowers and the rest.

How to see grizzlies? Spend a couple of days at a wilderness or fishing lodge that offers bear-watching outings as part of their daily activities. Or book a day trip with an outfitter. Most likely you'll go by float plane, landing on a distant lake or river. Is it worth the expense ($200 apiece and up) just to watch bears eat? Oh, yes. The plane flight alone is half the thrill.

Flying low over the land, I've seen not just bears but moose, herds of caribou, occasional wolves and swans on their nests. When our flight route crossed ocean inlets I spied pods of white beluga whales cruising at the surface. Flying over Katmai National Park — a favorite bear destination — look for the crater and devastated area around Novarupta Volcano, which exploded in 1912, darkening the sky for months. Yessir, flightseeing is every bit as momentous (in its way) as bear watching.

And for guaranteed close-ups? Take the kids (and your friends) to the Alaska Wildlife Conservation Center, in Portage Valley near Girdwood, close to Anchorage. The center, a rescue and rehabilitation center, takes in all kinds of orphaned and threatened wild animals — including brown bears — and raises them in multi-acre outdoor pens especially designed for visitor viewing.

You can tour the Center by car or on foot, and will be rewarded with plenty of close-ups. Whenever possible, healthy animals are reintroduced into the wild; others remain there, including bears, moose, musk oxen, a Wood Bison herd (reintroduced from Canada), coyotes, elk, eagles and owls. Every year brings another crop of cute (and cuddly) babies — presently including three teeny, furry musk ox calves and two spindly-legged moose calves. I wouldn't miss it, and you shouldn't either.

More Travel ▶

All-coach JetBlue Airways adds a first class cabin

More from our network

Sticky-fingered guests hit hotels From Seattle Times Travel and Outdoors

See smokejumpers up close at Missoula training base From Seattle Times Travel and Outdoors

Another hiker dies in harsh beauty of Arizona's "Wave" From Seattle Times Travel and Outdoors

Sound Transit to test charging for parking at 4 lots From Seattle Times Local News

Getting rid of 'gate lice' in airline boarding From Seattle Times Travel and Outdoors

More from the Web

Selected for you by a Sponsor

What You May Not Know About Buffet Food From Lifescript.com

10 Great Small Cities for Retirement From AARP

Hipster Camping From Sweetrelish

10 Things Flight Attendants Wish They Could Say But Can't From AARP.org

World's Most Jaw-Dropping Train Rides From Travel Channel

6-Pound Yorkie Protects Owner From Bear From Vetstreet

Recommended by

Improve Your Golf Swing

Watch free video lessons & learn to avoid common golf SquareToSquareMethod.com

7 Biblical Money Truths

Pastor reveals a 'Biblical MoneyCode' - Turns $40,000 www.newsmx.com

TRENDING WITH READERS

On seattletimes.com

MORE TRENDING ▶

MOST READ

1. Police cameras busy snapping license plates
2. Alaska fishing trip ends in tragedy for old high-school pals
3. Felon back in court — as an attorney
4. Already a sensation off the field, Clint Dempsey could turn Sounders into MLS favorites
5. Clint Dempsey unveiled as newest Sounder, thrilling fans
6. Early Doucet looking for fresh start with Seahawks
7. Attendance during final weekend of Seafair dips
8. Last act in the fall of A-Rod about to be viewed | Larry Stone
9. Sweet summer Microsoft job has lessons for teen, company | Brier Dudley
10. Google gets TV right with its simple, inexpensive Chromecast

MOST VIEWED GALLERIES

Seafair Weekend 2013

MOST WATCHED VIDEOS

Seahawks quarterback Russell Wilson talks to the media Friday.

ADVERTISING

News where, when and how you want it

All newsletters | Privacy statement

- On Facebook
- On Twitter
- On your phone
- On your doorstep

Travel News & Tips E-mail

Featured destinations, travel news and consumer tips. Sent weekly. \(Sample\)

Subscribe

ENTERTAINMENT EVENTS

"Eanger Irving Couse on the Columbia River." (Visual Arts)

Aug 4 - Sep 15 @ Maryhill Museum of Art

"The Dorothy and Herbert Vogel Collection: Fifty Works for Fifty States." (Visual Arts)

Aug 4 - Oct 27 @ Seattle Art Museum

"From Abstract Expression to Colored Planes." (Visual Arts)

Aug 4 - Nov 9 @ Seattle Art Museum

"Bearing Witness from Another Place: James Baldwin in Turkey." (Visual Arts)

Aug 4 - Sep 29 @ Northwest African American Museum

Band of Horses, Sera Cahoone, S (Readings/Literary)

Aug 5 @ The Showbox at the Market

Choose your neighborhood >

All today's events >

The Morning Memo

Check out:

Autos news and research

Explore